IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Maria M. Gonzalez, et al.,	)	No. CV 06-1268-PHX-ROS
Plaintiffs,	)	ORDER
vs.	)
State of Arizona, et al.,	)
Defendants.	)

The State of Arizona, the Arizona Secretary of State, and the majority of the county defendants, seek partial summary judgment.<sup>1</sup> For the following reasons, the motion will be granted.

On September 11, 2006, Plaintiffs appealed the Court’s denial of their request for a preliminary injunction. On April 20, 2007, the Ninth Circuit issued an opinion affirming the denial of the preliminary injunction. The Ninth Circuit decision includes discussion of some of the legal issues still pending before this Court. Based on this Court’s prior rulings, as well as the Ninth Circuit’s opinion, Defendants are entitled to summary judgment on nine of Plaintiffs’ claims.

<sup>1</sup> The only defendants that did not join the motion for summary judgment are the Coconino and Navajo county defendants.

1 I. Summary Judgment Standard

2 A court must grant summary judgment if the pleadings and supporting documents,
3 viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, “show that there is no genuine
4 issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter
5 of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c); see Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322-323 (1986).
6 Substantive law determines which facts are material, and “[o]nly disputes over facts that
7 might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will properly preclude the entry
8 of summary judgment.” Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986).

9 When a party seeks summary judgment early in the litigation, the opposing party may 10 request additional time for discovery. According to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(f), 11 “[s]hould it appear from the affidavits of a party opposing the motion that the party cannot 12 for reasons stated present by affidavit facts essential to justify the party's opposition, the 13 court . . . may order a continuance to permit affidavits to be obtained or depositions to be 14 taken or discovery to be had.” A continuance is proper only if the opposing party “shows,
15 among other things, that the discovery would uncover specific facts which would preclude 16 summary judgment.” United States Cellular Inv. Co. v. GTE Mobilnet, Inc., 281 F.3d 929,
17 939 (9th Cir. 2002). A Rule 56(f) continuance need not be granted if the claims fail as a 18 matter of law. Id. at 939-40.

19 II. Plaintiffs’ Claims

20 Defendants seek summary judgment on nine of Plaintiffs’ claims. Each claim will be 21 addressed separately.

22 A. National Voter Registration Act

23 Defendants seek summary judgment on Plaintiffs’ claim that the National Voter 24 Registration Act (“NVRA”) prohibits the State of Arizona from requiring individuals from 25 submitting proof of citizenship when registering to vote. The Ninth Circuit found that the 26 language of the NVRA “does not prohibit documentation requirements.” Gonzalez v.
27 Arizona, 485 F.3d 1041,1050 (9th Cir. 2007). In fact, the Ninth Circuit found that the NVRA
28

1 “plainly allow[s] states, at least to some extent, to require their citizens to present evidence
2 of citizenship when registering to vote.” Id. at 1050-51. The NVRA does not prohibit the 3 State of Arizona’s actions and Defendants are entitled to judgment as a matter of law on this 4 issue.

5 B. Supremacy Clause

6 Plaintiffs’ claim pursuant to the Supremacy Clause is premised on their belief that
7 Prop. 200 and the NVRA are in conflict. (Doc. 300 p.21) Because Prop. 200 and the NVRA
8 do not conflict, Plaintiffs have no cause of action pursuant to the Supremacy Clause and 9 summary judgment will be granted on this claim.

10 C. Poll Tax

11 Defendants seek summary judgment on Plaintiffs’ claim that Prop. 200’s registration
12 identification requirement amounts to an unconstitutional poll tax in violation of the Twenty-
13 fourth Amendment. In resolving this issue, the Ninth Circuit found that Arizona’s system
14 “is not like the system found unconstitutional” by the Supreme Court in Harman v.
15 Forssenius, 380 U.S. 528 (1965). Id. at 1049. In Arizona, “voters do not have to choose
16 between paying a poll tax and providing proof of citizenship when they register to vote.
17 They have only to provide the proof of citizenship.” Id. Arizona’s system does not, as a 18 matter of law, qualify as a poll tax. Thus, Defendants are entitled to summary judgment on 19 this issue.

20 D. 42 U.S.C. § 1971(a)(2)(A)

21 Section 1971(a)(2)(A) prohibits a person acting under color of law from “apply[ing]
22 any standard, practice, or procedure different from the standards, practices, or procedures
23 applied under such law or laws to other individuals within the same county, parish, or similar 24 political subdivision who have been found by State officials to be qualified to vote.”
25 Plaintiffs believe Prop. 200 conflicts with this section because Prop. 200 “creates two classes
26 of voters: those who vote early and those who vote at the polls on election day.” (Doc. 295
27 p.13) According to Plaintiffs, voters that choose to vote early are not subject to Prop. 200’s
28

1 identification requirements but voters that vote at the polls on election day are subject to the 2 requirements. Early voting “is an inherently different procedure from voting in person.”
3 Indiana Democratic Party v. Rokita, 458 F. Supp. 2d 775, 840 (S.D. Ind. 2006). Because 4 early voting and voting at the polls are different types of voting, it is not a violation of §
5 1971(a)(2)(A) for Arizona to employ different “standards, practices, or procedures” to these
6 two types of voting. 42 U.S.C. § 1971(a)(2)(A). Defendants are entitled to summary
7 judgment on this claim.

8 E. 42 U.S.C. § 1971(a)(2)(B)

9 Section 1971(a)(2)(B) prohibits any person acting under color of law from “deny[ing]
10 the right of any individual to vote in any election because of an error or omission on any 11 record or paper relating to any application, registration, or other act requisite to voting, if 12 such error or omission is not material in determining whether such individual is qualified
13 under State law to vote in such election.” Plaintiffs believe that Prop. 200 violates this 14 statute in two ways. First, the failure to provide valid identification at the polls is “an error
15 or omission on any record or paper relating to any application, registrations, or other act
16 requisite to voting.” And second, proof of citizenship is not material for determining an 17 individual’s eligibility to vote. Neither argument is convincing.

18 The Court agrees with the analysis in Rokita that “the act of presenting photo 19 identification in order to prove one's identity is by definition not an ‘error or omission on any 20 record or paper.’” Rokita, 458 F. Supp. 2d at 841. Thus, Prop. 200 does not violate the first 21 portion of § 1971(a)(2)(B). Also, only citizens may vote. Requiring an individual to present
22 proof of citizenship allows the State to determine if that individual is qualified to vote.
23 Citizenship is material in determining whether an individual may vote and Arizona’s decision
24 to require more proof than simply affirmation by the voter is not prohibited. Thus, Prop. 200
25 does not violate the second portion of § 1971(a)(2)(B). Defendants are entitled to summary
26 judgment on this claim.

1                   F. Voting Rights Act

2                   Before implementing any legislative or other changes affecting voting, Arizona is 3 required to obtain federal approval of those changes. Plaintiffs believe that Arizona “did not 4 comply with the federal requirement to describe its proposed election changes with 5 ‘sufficient particularity’ to allow the Department of Justice to evaluate their impact on 6 minority voters.” (Doc. 297 p.14) Specifically, Plaintiffs believe that Arizona’s submission
7 to the Department of Justice was insufficient because it did not include a copy of A.R.S. §
8 16-121.01. It is undisputed, however, that Prop. 200 did not change A.R.S. § 16-121.01.
9 Prop. 200 did change A.R.S. § 16-152 (requirements for voter registration) but that statute
10 was submitted to the Department of Justice in the preclearance submission. There is no issue
11 of material fact regarding Arizona’s preclearance of Prop. 200 and Defendants are entitled 12 to summary judgment on this claim.

13                   G. A.R.S. § 16-151(B)

14                   Pursuant to A.R.S. § 16-151(B), “[t]he secretary of state shall make available for 15 distribution through governmental and private entities the voter registration forms that are 16 prescribed by the federal election commission.” Plaintiffs claim that the Secretary of State
17 is violating this statute by failing to make available the federal registration forms.

18                   According to evidence submitted by Defendants, “[t]he Secretary of State’s Office 19 makes the Federal Form available to anyone who requests it.” (Doc. 282-4 p.9) Also, the 20 form is “available on the Election Assistance Commission’s website . . . and can be easily
21 printed or downloaded.” (Id.) See also Maricopa County Election Director’s deposition 22 testimony (the form is available “on-line and . . . [they] have them on-line if somebody came 23 in.” (Doc. 308-2 p.3)). Plaintiffs have not presented any evidence that the form is not 24 available or that any individual has been unable to obtain the form from the Secretary of 25 State. Defendants are entitled to summary judgment on this claim.

1           H. A.R.S. § 16-121.01

2           Plaintiffs believe A.R.S. § 16-121.01 “provides that a person is presumed to be
3 properly registered to vote on completion of a registration form . . . without the submission
4 of further documentary proof of citizenship.” (Doc. 1-2 p.7) Requiring any submission of 5 proof of citizenship, according to Plaintiffs, is in direct conflict with § 16-121.01. Plaintiffs 6 arrive at their conclusion by construing the statute in an overly strict manner.

7           Section 16-121.01 states “[a] person is presumed to be properly registered to vote on 8 completion of a registration form as prescribed by § 16-152.” Pursuant to § 16-152, voter 9 registration forms must include “[a] statement that the applicant shall submit evidence of 10 United States citizenship with the application and that the registrar shall reject the application
11 if no evidence of citizenship is attached.” Reading these statutes together, § 16-121.01
12 requires a prospective voter to complete a registration form and § 16-152 requires registration
13 forms to alert prospective voters to the requirement that they submit proof of citizenship.
14 These statutes do not conflict. An individual that properly completes a registration form as 15 set forth in A.R.S. § 16-152 will be presumed to be properly registered pursuant to A.R.S.
16 § 16-121.01. Plaintiffs have not shown that requiring a properly completed registration form
17 violates the presumption set forth in A.R.S. § 16-121.01. Defendants are entitled to summary
18 judgment on this claim.

19           I. Mandamus

20           In their response to the Motion for Summary Judgment, the Navajo Plaintiffs agreed
21 “that the Court should grant summary judgment in favor of the State on the mandamus 22 claim.” (Doc. 292 p.2) Based on this statement, summary judgment on this claim will be 23 granted.
24
